on the first place, let us consider the egg question. The Barred P. Rocks on an average lay a larger egg than the Wyandottes, yet I have Wyandottes that can match them. As to the number of eggs laid during a year, I find very little difference; this point, of course depending on the manner in which the fowls are bred and fed, and, in fact, the latter statement holds good for every other quality in the

When it comes to color of eggs, I find a considerable difference. I have brought my White Wyandottes to a very dark egg standard, but my Barred P. Rocks have failed to climb those last few steps, regardless of all the trouble and ex pense to which I have been to put them on an equal plane with my White Wyandottes in this quality.
Now comes the question of mar-

Now comes the question of market value. In this I find the Wy andottes decidedly the better, but by that I do not say that the Bar-red P. Rocks are not good. The 'Dottes, when dressed for broilers, show plump meaty breasts, fine boned carcasses, with rich yellow skins, which are free from the dark pinfeathers that so detract from pinfeathers that so detract from the appearance of the Rocks. The Rocks for broilers are somewhat bony, and form very little breast until past the broiler line. When it comes to roasters there

When it comes to roasters there is a slight difference. The 'Dottes still have the same features, but they fall short of the Rocks in weight. On the other hand, the growing Rocks have thrown a good breast (perhaps a little coarser in quality) and the pin-feathers which took away the rich effect when chicks, have now nearly all developed into feathers, and the all developed into feathers, and the birds show a clean yellow carcass. Here I consider the 'Dottes first. There is another important point, and that is growth and maturity. This is an important point, and counts one for the Rock. I find the counts one for the Rock. I find the Dottes are slow growers, and that the pullets do not reach maturity that is laying age, until two to four weeks later than the Rocks. I suppose many will pick me up here, but by honest comparison in my own yards I find this is too true, and as these two breeds have been bred and raised under my own care and the selfsame conditions, I want and the selfsame conditions, I want no other proof.

Some people claim that the Rocks are hardier, and I must confess that as for fertile eggs and rugged chicks I think they are a little in the lead; yet after the down is shed I can see no difference.

When it women to the question of

I can see no difference.
When it comes to the question of food, I find that the Rocks are more ravenous, and naturally require more food than the 'Dottes.
If you are thinking of raising show birds, the White Wyandottes are the easiest to perfect, as it requires less knowledge or color breeding and experience in maties, which must be employed in breeding and experience in indi-ing, which must be employed in breeding Rock show birds. Now let me say here, do not expect to breed show birds from nothing, or even something from nothing, for as you become initiated you will find it difficult to raise prize winners from even the best of something. I have tried to bring out the prin cipal points of difference in these cipal points of difference in these two breeds and, as you see, for general profit they just about balwance. From my statements one might say, he 'has no preference' but let me say I have, and that preference is given to the Wyandottes. It is not, however, a preference as to result in profit and loss, but a preference due to my idea of what a profitable fowl ought to be.—J. F. C., in Farm Poultry, Rocks and 'Dottes.

The question is often raised in regard to the standing of Barret precedented in my fourteen years, and their comparative value as gratifying, not only for my pock-business fowls. I have bred both varieties, and many others, for several years, and what few state. Because it is not becautiful and useful that this most beautiful and useful ments I make come from my own breed is recognized as much in a substantial manner by the public at large, thus assuring them a standing in the poultry kingdom only second to one other breed. We have in the Silver Wyandotte the best all-purpose fowl in the United States to-day. In England it is recognized as such, having been taken up by the English fanbeen taken up by the English lan-ciers (although originating in this country) and bred to such perfec-tion that they lead to day at all the principal English shows. The qualities claimed for the Silver Wyandottes are their beautiful markings, hardiness, quick growth (making splendid broilers at 5 to 10 weeks, well feathered and plum; of body), or fine table fowl when matured, weighing about five pounds then—the meat being tender and juicy; or if you want a fow for eggs, they are second to none, especially as winter layers, having the advantage of the Leghorns, their only rivals as layers, in this their only rivats as layers, in this

—that they are quiet and gentle, and can easily be controlled in a four-foot poultry netting fence; and, again, in the fact that they will raise a brood or two of chickens every year, and do it in such a way that it is safe to count on bringing up 90 per cent of the chicks hatched.

For utility and beauty, for the fancier or farmer, or for the ama-teur with a restricted suburban lot, there is no breed of poultry that will give quite so much pleas-ure and profit as the Silver Wyar-dottes.—HENRY STEINMESCH in STEINMESCH American Poultry Journal.

Cow Peas For Hogs and Hens

L. W. Lightly, writing in the National Stockman, says: "A neighbor of mine asked me to get him some seed (cow peas) to sow for soiling, but an extra wet season gave plenty of pasture and the cow peas were allowed to ripen, whereupon the fowls started to harvest them, and he told me that his chickens never laid so many eggs in the same length of time a eggs in the same length of time as they did while the cow peas lasted, and right in the fall, too, when chickens generally stop laying and leisurely change their clothes and make up their toilet. Eggs were a good price, and the crop of cow peas was the most profitable crop he raised that season; and he did not have the trouble to have stifnot have the trouble to harvest either. The kafir corn he har-vested for a winter feed for the poultry, and reports it a good thing, but by no means equal to the peas as an egg-producing food. If you turn a lot of pigs into a field of cow peas when they begin to ripen, you will be astonished to find a lot of hogs in a remarkably short time.

Capt. Stone Caught the Crowd With a Fine Speech.

Even His Opponents Admit That He Made Many New Supporters.

Capt. W. J. Stone spoke at th rt House Saturday

He was introduced by Dr. J. D. Clardy and began speaking to a crowd of 250, which was soon in-Clardy and began speaking to a crowd of 250, which was soon in-creased to 300. A number of ladies were present and so attentively was the speech listened to that hardly a man left during the two fours of its delivery.

In his speech he dwelt at considerable length on the history and principles of the Democratic and Republican parties and gave a brief exposition of the tariff question.

He paid his attention to the trusts and said that if the centralization of monied capital continued atton of monied capital continued as rapidly in the next year as it had in time past, all the trusts and combines would be in one gigantic trust, controlling every industry to the country, that will fix the price of a day's labor, of the products of the farm and of all manufactured articles. He then discussed the silver question, saying that as a follower of Jefferson, Jackson, Beck and all the other Democratic leaders be bed always been a believer and all the other Democratic lead-ers he had always been a believer in the free coinage of silver and gold, and now favored unlimited coinage at the ratio of 16 to 1 with-out waiting for the aid or consent of any other nation.

He then turned to state matter saying he was opposed to trusts and combines and the aggressions of corporate wealth. He paid par-ticular attention to the school book trust, saying that the state had the right to see that only a fair price should be charged for school books. He favored the employment of cor victs inside the prison walls, to the victs inside the prison walls, to the end that they should be self-sus-taining, but care should be taken that they should not come in com-petition with the poorest class of labor. He favored economy in state Capt. Stone said he had started into the race for the nomination fo governor with a desire to see the canvass conducted on a high plane and that he was for party success even above his own ambition. He was ready to fight his party's bat tles no matter he where was put.

Whether nominated or not, he would do all in his power to bring party success. After starting into party success. After starting into the campaign he heard it whispered around that "Stone had no show," that "Stone was not sound on silver," that "Stone voted for gold bonds," and other simular insinuations. He determined to find their source and in his speech at 'Wiachester he defied anybody to bow where he had voted for gold bow where he had voted for gold tongds. At once a champion sprang to the front. Gen. P. Wat Hardin, in a speech at Shelbyville, then at-tempted to show where he (Stone) had voted for gold bonds, and had made an egregious failure. In his Hopkinsville speech Hardin had at tempted to elucidate his failure a to the then read from the rec-how he had voted for every sil-amendment and against every which provided for any nof gold bonds. He and some State go and controlled the State convention in 1895. He gave a thrust at Hardin for the State convention in 1895. He gave a thrust at Hardin for the State convention adopted a fashion that satisfied all Democrats that the Mid-Market Market Mar gold platform, his own county ing for it. He did this against advice of Urey Woodson, W. T Ellis, Jim Richardson, Ollie Jame and other silver leaders. The as follows:

" 'We reaffirm without qualifica tion the principles and policies clared by the Democratic nati platform of 1892, and declare that our present national Democratic administration is entitled to the thanks of the party for its honest, courageous and statesmanlike-man agement of public affairs; and we 'undiminished confi otism of President Grover Cleve land and his distinguished co-ad viser and secretary, John G. Car-lisle, of Kentucky."

"There you are—Cleveland, gold bonds and all-and his county voted for it. Hardin says that he has a right to demand that you stand by him, but I see you are not doing it. But you will remember how he came on the stage after his nomination and said, 'I accept your nomina-tion on the platform.'

"Gen. Hardin says, 'the cunning hand will be at work attempting to frame the platform.

'Who framed the platform of 1895?
Helm, Duke, Lindsay, Atherton—
the same crowd who are now industriously promoting Hardin's candidacy. They framed the plat-form which Woodson, Ellis, Rhea, Richardson, Meacham and others, who were the pioneers in the silver cause, attempted to keep out. They have headquarters in Louis-I ney nave neadquarters in Louis-ville and are actively pushing Har-din as a candidate. Matyr! Who martyred you Gen. Hardin? You made the platform yourself, then got off it.

"Gen. Hardin claims that none of the leaders helped him in 1895. I followed him to defeat. He was never elected except at the tail of the ticket. I spoke all over the western and southern parts of the State and defended him as best 1 could. I defended him in Sha ford's campaign. But what my surprise when only a short time ago I read the decision of the court of appeals in the Max Barker case. John Young Brown, the greatest Governor Kentucky ever had up to the present time, brought the suit.

The record speaks for itself."
Capt. Stone then read the answer

A MIRACLE

Is the Restoration to Sight of Young Girl.

About ten days ago the little daughter, 12 years old, of Mr. John Hines, a substantial farmer living near Massac, had a hard chill, which was followed by a high fever When the fever died away the little one was left totally blind. The lo-cal physicians gave Mr. Hines no hope that the sight would ever restored. Yesterday morning the little one awoke to find the darkness gone, and that her sight had been partially restored. Mr. Hines brought the little girl to the city, where her eyes we given an examination by a lo occulist, who gave Mr. Hines he that his daughter's eyes would a few days be all right

SEASON OF 1899.

To Our Fairnos: Another season of seed time is fast approaching, and the wise and prudent farmer will again use the old and favorably known JONES BRANDS or BONE and ANIMAL MATTER FERTILIZERS, that have for many years done their full duty when applied to both Spring and Fall crops. The use of commercial Fertilizers is almost universal, and the experience of many years has proven conclusively that ANIMAL MATTER FERTILIZERS are the most complete plant food known, and the fact of putting ACID PHOSPHATE ROCK in a bag and branding it 'DIS SOLVED BONE' does not make it snimal matter. Housest strictly pure Animal Matter Fertilizers cost more than rock goods because they are worth more, and we sak that you remember this fact. Our goods go out under our guarantee analysis, and this guarantie is good. We offer our goods on their merits, and refer with great satisfaction, to their most excellent reputation in all parts of Ohio, Indiana, and Kentuck's, where they are extensively used. We respectfully urge von to give the celebrated Jones Fertilizing Co', goods a trial on both Spring and Fall crops, and we know satisfactory results and future orders will certainly follow.

THIRD KENTUCKY IN CAMP

Headed by Col. Smith the Regiment Marched Through Savannah.

Savannah, Ga., April 18.—The Third Kentucky regiment came to passioned appeal for the admission of his friends from Louisville, but they were shut out in so cold and cruel a manner that the Gonard control of the hall in a pout. The following eloquent extract is from his speech:

"I stand here a Republican. Whatever mistakes I may have made, you should not make them. And if you accuse me of faults. I beg you to remember that when causers and said, I beg you to remember that when crues and asaid, I beg you to remember that this is the anniversary of the battle of Sama, when I routed the forces and broke the power of Carthage, and in answer to your charges I bare my bosom country service.

"Now, gentlemen of the convention, this is not an anniversary. But I would ask you to remember that I bore your banner and returned it victorious for the first time in history in Keutucky. I am not here to beg and plead. I may have made mistakes. There are those here who dislike me. Have you forgiven me?"

The following joke is being told.

til it reached the city. The officers have reasons for believing they will be mustered out in a short time. Had it not been for a countermanding order, gloomy news would have awaited the men in the shape of a reduction of pay to what soldiers reduction of pay to what soldiers are allowed in times of peace, in stead of in war. Col. Smith thought for a time his men would have to stand this cut, but for the fact that it was shown the order would have a partial bearing probably had much to do with its revo cation

FRANK BUTLER HURT.

A Tier Pole Fell on Him Tuesday Afternoon.

Frank Butler, who resides on th farm of V. A. Garnett, near towr was painfully injured about 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon by the falling of a tier pole in a tobacco barn. It seems that Mr. Butler was doing some work in the barn when the pole fell. He received very ugly scalp wound, about six stitches being required to sew it up. In addition to the scalp wound Mr. Butler's back was somewhat wrenched by the weight of the pole.

Cocoanit by Mail.

One of the strangest packages which has ever been handled by the clerks in the Waterville post office was delivered to S. S. Laghtbody the other afternoon. The package was a cocoanut in the same form in which it was taken from the tree. There was not ag attached to the cocoanut. Instead, the address was written on the husk. One of the three sides of the husk was taken up by the address, which used up nearly all the space allotted for it. Another side contained the postage stamps. Of these there were one 15-cent stamp, two two-cent stamps, and, in spite of the fact that the remaining stamp of one-cent dethe remaining stamp of one-cent de-nomination was one of the stamps issued in commemoration of the Maine there was plenty of room for many sted in commemoration of the Maine, there was plenty of room for many more stamps of the same size, so large was the surface.
